SEPTEMBER IN FOCUS

Just Sensing the Possibilities

Sometimes the answers to love's questions seem so obvious to you. Like how to raise the kids (lovingly and leniently), cook (nutritious, home-style meals) or share one another's space (dividing yours, mine, and shared).

Taurus partners can always expect a sensible response - usually the one that makes the most sense to you! You're truly appreciated for your practical, grounded approach to love and life, Taurus. And if blessed, you meet a love who wants to frolic carelessly in your Garden of Eden while still allowing you to be the king or queen of all you survey.

Two Eclipses on your love and friendship axis throw a wild card into this month's love games. Change isn't your favorite word, but the Full Moon Eclipse in Pisces happily expands your world, your cherished dreams, your friendships, and your hopes for the future. Old dreams may end, but new ones are born.

As Virgo planets head into a New Moon Eclipse in your sector of love affairs, creativity, and children, you may leave old lovers for new, settle creative differences with your sweetie, and maybe even end a longstanding discussion about children, once and for all. Pregnancies are a big possibility for some Taureans. If that's what you want, now is the time!

When Venus enters Virgo on September 5, you'll want more time to relax, to be with friends, and to do creative activities. Sing in the shower, make artistic collages, start a journal about the next chapter you're beginning in your life. Do what you enjoy and take care of yourself. Mars moves into Libra on September 7 and immediately begins making adjustments to your daily routine. You and your sweetheart go back and forth over how to align schedules and priorities. If you're entering a new love affair, get ready for Libra partnership adjustments –relinquishing a corner of your throne for the sake of balance!

September Calendar

September 5, 2006

Venus enters Virgo

Venus in Virgo is in your love affairs sector, and like the Jerry Seinfeld of the dating scene, something's always not quite right. "Her table manners were disgraceful." "How insensitive, he ordered lamb and I'm a vegetarian!" Instead of focusing on the fatal flaw, play up your sex appeal by showing your sweetie your sincerity, interest, and concern for subjects close to your heart. All month a relaxing massage is in order, so consider touch therapy one of your best bets for foreplay! Venus in a fellow earth sign wants to be touched, played with, toes tickled, nerves soothed. Do the same for your mate. We all need to be pampered, so turn off the mental chatter and sink into the pleasures of practical self-care, Virgo's forte. Pluto, co-ruler of your partnership and marriage sector, went direct on September 4, ensuring more and better help from your sweetie.

September 7, 2006

Full Moon Lunar Eclipse in Pisces; Mars enters Libra

The Full Moon in Pisces is romantic and emotional, with a lovely aspect from Jupiter in your partnership and marriage sector. You may find yourself entangled in a beautiful love story. Eat dinner at a restaurant by water, dance the night away at a fun nightclub, or listen to live music at a seaside bar. Bodies of water, dancing, drinking, music - all are Pisces realms, places you'll find emotional fulfillment. Do something active. Later in the day, Mars enters Libra, placing him in your sector of health and work, where he'll stay through October 22. This is a great period to focus on getting in shape, strength training, and cleaning up your diet. If you're single, join a gym or sign up for a yoga class. You never know who you might meet!

September 15, 2006

Mercury conjunct Mars; Venus oppose Uranus

The subject of the day: relationships. Everyone has something to say about their S.O. and try as they might, it's near impossible to sugarcoat discomforts. Hint: Mercury rules your money sector, so you two may be having financial discussions. An opposition between Venus and Uranus brings sudden developments on the romance scene! It's a fabulous evening for a romantic rendezvous, but you must supplicate Uranus, the god of sudden upsets. Get experimental and cultivate an "anything could happen tonight and it would be OK" attitude. When your date comes to the door with flowers you're allergic to, laugh it off and let the good intention speak.

September 19, 2006

Venus sextile Jupiter

Depending on where you live, your ruling planet, Venus, meets Jupiter for a before-sunrise kiss on September 19. Indeed, you'll be full of light, laughter, and optimism all day, thanks to generous Jupiter. Imagine awakening to a dreamy love note from your sweetie on your pillow saying, "Last night was wonderful," or to a gift for an evening well spent. Jupiter in your partnership sector signifies generosity from others. And no one likes giving and receiving more than you, Taurus. The most obvious is the gift of partnership. If you're in a happy, secure, loving relationship, this is the greatest gift of all!

September 22, 2006

New Moon Solar Eclipse in Virgo; Sun enters Libra

When a woman gives birth to a baby, she physically parts with a piece of herself. Much like bringing a pregnancy to term, this New Moon has that same quality of ending, and these endings are emotionally and physically taxing. Just when you're at the end of your rope, there's a second New Moon in a row in your sector of love, children, and self-expression, and voila - you're given a final push! The Sun moves into Libra a few hours later, and your energy shifts onto practical concerns such as balancing work, health routines, and lifestyles with your partner.

September 25, 2006

Venus square Pluto; Mercury sextile Saturn

Venus on Pluto: "I've always wanted to meet a dark, handsome, mysterious stranger." Pluto: "What a tasty morsel you are." Without understanding why or how, you could get dragged into a conversation with your sweetie that brings up insecurities or fears you'd rather not face. Even if your deep feelings stir up fears of tragic consequences, the results don't have to be. Fortunately, a favorable aspect between Mercury and Saturn on the same day strengthens the bonds of your relationship by supporting deep listening and full appreciation of one another's point of view. Open communication is a golden key to relationship happiness!

Love Match

Taurus and Aries:

Every once in a while Taurus throws her hands up in the air confounded and confused. How else can a slow, deliberate Bull respond to the Ram's errant adventures and bright ideas that come and go faster than you can act on them? Cut each other some slack on September 5.

Taurus and Taurus:

You hold down the fort for your Bull partner, a port in the occasional storm. You also defend your right to do what you want, no questions asked. What happens when one of you wants to drive a point home? You get it right back at 'ya. Don't use covert tactics on September 25. Open discussion is better.

Taurus and Gemini:

Gemini sits on a mountain top because Twins were told meditation is a good way to soothe restless minds. But five minutes later, Gem's bored. Taurus is the mountain, unmoving and peaceable. How good is Gem at scaling mountain tops? Find out on September 5.

Taurus and Cancer:

Cancer can be as placid as Taurus, but underneath the Moonchild's calm exterior is a nature more complex and changeable than the Bull can comprehend. Taurus is a Zen master with "don't complicate things" straightforward advice to stabilize the Crab. The world gets a little bigger for both of you on September 6.

Taurus and Leo:

There's a common core issue between Taurus and Leo: Leo thinks Taurus lacks sophistication, and Taurus thinks Leo is self-indulgent. No matter how you slice it, there's a little of you both in the other. Leo went out on a whim and you both feel the squeeze on September 16.

Taurus and Virgo:

Virgo can wait all day for you to make good on that promise to pick up your dirty socks off the floor. Taurus will bring home the bacon and even cook it, but relies on Virgin tidiness to keep order at home. You're both ready for new rules on September 25.

Taurus and Libra:

Like Beauty and the Beast, you experience both potentials in one another. It's always easier to see the beast in the other person, but if you're both honest in that moment of blame, you'll recognize your individual self. You learn more about love's power to see clearly on September 15.

Taurus and Scorpio:

It appears you want your cake and want to eat it, too. No one loves deep chocolate cake more than Scorpio, so she makes an offer in on the farm while wondering if she's bitten off more than even the Bull can chew. September 19 is promising, but don't move on it yet.

Taurus and Sagittarius:

For the Bull, a good time doesn't involve sky diving, all night dance clubs, or riding motorcycles at midnight with no headlights. For the Archer, the ultimate evening has nothing to do with commingling among up and coming Fortune 500's. On September 18, find a way to play together.

Taurus and Capricorn:

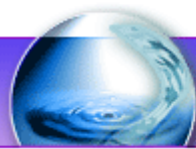

Taurus keeps all her eggs in one basket, but like a hedge-fund master, Capricorn divides the pot, allocating the difference in different places. Taurus is busy giving birth this month, giving Capricorn the green light run with a whole new plan on September 22.

Taurus and Aquarius:

If you two were time travelers, Aquarius would jump on board while Taurus asks, "What's the point?" "What's the point?" Aquarius exasperatedly exclaims, wondering if Taurus is paying attention to the state of the planet, global warming, and corrupt politicians. Consider the slogan, "Be here now" on September 15.

Taurus and Pisces:

You two understand one another's bank accounts like foreign currencies without an exchange rate. Pisces: Checks? Aren't those are for floating till next payday? Taurus: A penny saved is a penny earned. You're learning one another's money IQ on September 12.

Summary

When your sweetheart asks what you'd like to do this weekend, you look right in front of your nose, replying, "We've had theater tickets for months." September's a little more unpredictable than Taurus likes, but in a good way. Will you receive an unexpected blessing, a gift in disguise, sudden inspiration, or a wish come true? Powerful Eclipse energy brings endings, closures, and partings, but the most dramatic endings always precede big beginnings. Love affairs may fizzle out . . . but if they're meant to be, you know it now. Pleasure-loving Venus isn't wearing her best face in Virgo. As the one who spies a way to make things better, it always comes out sounding like criticism. On the upswing, you'll be great at giving out advice and foot massages, too! Perhaps you'll receive a sweet massage yourself, especially on September 6, the night before the Full Moon, and on September 18, two of your best dates for love. Mars and Mercury enter Libra on September 7 and September 12, respectively. Tit-for-tat discussions happen at work, involving coworkers. With your sweetie, discussions revolve around lifestyle challenges of trying to earn a living and have a life! Personal trainer Mars advises that health improvements begun this month pay off in spades – and maybe even a few new dates. That said, if you're pregnant, take special care with your health; Eclipses challenge the physical and emotional bodies. Communication may be tricky on September 8, but new understanding comes on September 25. Next month: love reigns supreme.
